

Steve Carroll (Playwright, Lindbergh) was an original member of The Meat and Potatoes Company in New York City, where he appeared in dozens of plays including Deathwatch (Green Eyes), Romeo and Juliet (Romeo), Design For Living (Otto), The Infernal Machine (Oedipus) and A Loss Of Roses (Kenny). Other favorite roles include Jimmy Porter in Look Back In Anger, Cliff in Cabaret, Garcin in No Exit and The Gentleman Caller in The Glass Menagerie.

Since 1970, Mr. Carroll has worked extensively in theatre, commercials, industrial films and daytime dramas, including a four-year stint as Dr. Matt Rawlins on ABC-TV's One Life To Live. Several years ago, he traveled to China and portrayed U.S. diplomat John Carter Vincent in a 30-part series for Chinese television called A War of China's Fate, which coincided with the 50th anniversary celebration of The People's Republic. The series achieved national acclaim in China, winning many prestigious awards.

Mr. Carroll would like to thank Bob Brown for inspiring the project along with Billy Stone for helping it become a reality. Special thanks to Mike Levin for program, DVD, and poster design, and to Greg Smith and Elaine Levin-Smith for your love and support.
